

Historical Approaches in Cultural Analysis

The working group on Historical Approaches in Cultural Analysis will:

- form an international forum for the discussion and promotion of new historical studies
- re-evaluate perspectives, approaches, methods, theories and forms of knowledge within the historical research
- seek to broaden possibilities in studying the past

The working group strategic aims include: the promotion of historical studies, the encouragement of young researchers to contribute to the field of historical research and the strengthening of exchange between the field of contemporary and historical research in a more systematic matter.

Members, past panels and future ideas

We now have 37 members. After the last conference, the amount of the membership has grown with a few new members. Welcome to plan the future events together!

Our working group's previous SIEF panels include:

- Agents, politics and intermediality in/of circulating historical knowledge
- Teaching historical-ethnological approaches to the past
- History and placemaking
- Culinary heritage as an island of well-being (with WG on Food Research)

We aim at organizing a seminar in Estonia, at the University of Tartu in 2018.
